
TV Documentaries on Hugo Chavez' Life Begins in Venezuela

31/01/2017

Caracas, Jan 31 (Prensa Latina) Venezuelan state television broadcasters begin today a presentation of documentaries about the life and work of the leader of the Bolivarian Revolution, Hugo Chavez.

With the exhibition of Dreams Come as Rain from 21:00 local time, this Tuesday begins a day called The Real Chavez, according to the website of the Ministry of Communication and Information.

'The intention is to channel the material of an enormous potential that the Commander left to us, and channel it through the cinema as a way to build and create thought and ideology', expressed on the eve the Minister of Culture, Adan Chavez, in a public appearance.

Likewise, the director stressed the importance of national cinematography to protect the country's historical memory and raise the cultural level of the people.

The Bolivarian Revolution boosts and promotes the production of Venezuelan cinematographic material, 'for being a deeply educational tool,' added the official.

Finally, he commented that as part of the rescue of the conscience and other values 'of the people, it is necessary to exhibit the humanist, revolutionary, political and ethical legacy of Hugo Chávez (1954-2013).
