Cuban President Miguel Díaz-Canel and Prime Minister Manuel Marrero on Monday welcomed the medical brigades of the Henry Reeve contingent to their homeland as they fought against COVID-19 in Antigua and Barbuda, Andorra and Nicaragua.

The information was made known through the official Twitter account of the Minister of Foreign Trade and Foreign Investment, Rodrigo Malmierca, who described the meeting as exciting.

"President @DiazCanelB and PM @MarreroCruz welcomed HENRY REEVE medical brigades that returned from #Andorra #Nicaragua and #AntiguaBarbuda. Exciting exchange where we knew experiences of our heroes. People from #Cuba receive them with healthy pride. #We areCuba pic.twitter.com/rWFw17oS2T"

Summing up the meeting, Díaz-Canel emphasized that with their work, the specialists on the island are crushing the attempts of the U.S. empire to discredit the Cuban Revolution and the supportive cooperation it provides.

The head of state added that the aid Cuba provides to other countries is not human trafficking, as the U.S. administration is trying to demonstrate, but a gift of love.
