
Cuban Doctors Boost Healthcare

04/09/2014

The healthcare system is getting a boost...Over one hundred and thirty medical professionals from Cuba will join the public's health sector this week to address a shortage of suitably qualified healthcare professionals in this country.

At their orientation ceremony this morning Health Minister Dr. Fuad Khan said there is a shortfall of over two thousand nurses and two hundred doctors so another one hundred and seventy will be arriving in the next two months.
