Cuban president Miguel Diaz-Canel assured that the new anniversary of the Revolution is a reason of pride, commitment and another opportunity to continue building the humanist social process started in 1959.

'On the verge of the end of 2018, we are all preparing to celebrate the New Year's Eve within the family and to wait for 2019. With a new January the #60 Anniversary Revolution comes, date for rejoicing, pride, commitment and another opportunity to continue doing for #Cuba #SomosCuba', wrote the president in Twitter @DiazCanelB.

Recently, the Head of state described 2019 as a year of challenges and there is enough motivation to work better and achieve greater results.

In 2019 we are in pursuit of more, he said during the last meeting of the Council of Ministers, which included in its agenda issues related to foreign investment, exports, territorial and urban planning, internal control and attention to the population.

Diaz-Canel talked about several issues that will continue to mark the government's work during the coming year.

We must all work together,' stated the Cuban president.
