Djokovic loss will see Nadal take world No.1 spot on November 4

11/10/2019

Novak Djokovic will fall from top spot in tennis' ATP rankings on November 4, where he will be replaced by Rafael Nadal. After almost a year off top spot, the Spaniard will make his way back onto tennis' summit.

The Serb's defeats in the quarter-finals in Shanghai against Stefanos Tsitsipas will see the leadership change hands again. Tsitsipas himself is the sixth highest-ranked in the ATP charts.

Nadal will now arrive in London as top seed, with Djokovic taking second.
