
Blue-sky thinking? Petition in Ukraine to tax Russian satellites for fly-overs

29/03/2016

If Moscow doesn't pay, the satellites should be taken down for "illegal trafficking."

Read more Ukrainian lady calls for ban on gays in police after husband falls for male officer

-
"Charge for Russia's space orbital vehicles flying over Ukraine's territory. If payment is refused, the property should be busted and destroyed for illegal trafficking," reads the petition filed by Maksim Kovalevich on Monday.

In the event the petition collects 25,000 signatures within a three-month period (92 days), it will be sent to the president for consideration. This would not guarantee, however, that it would make it into a draft proposal.

So far the petition has only gained six signatures, but it still has 91 days to go.

Dmitry Rogozin, Russia's vice-prime minister in charge of the military industry, has made a Twitter post in which he suggested using good old-fashioned methods to counter Russia's 'untaxed operations' in space.

"Ukraine discusses shooting down fly-by Roscosmos [Russian state space corporation] satellites. I guess all of the National Guards are going to pull the sling?"
