

Interconnection a Topic to Debate in ACS Summit in Cuba

---

03/06/2016

Senior officials the Association of Caribbean States (ACS) coincided today with the need to impel initiatives to improve the interconnection of the nations of the area with the intention of guaranteeing its development. The marine, air, commercial connectivity, is one of the challenges that face the nations of the Caribbean Sea, stated the Cuban vice chancellor Abelardo Moreno to the press, in the context of the ACS experts' meeting, that precedes those meetings for the Foreign Ministers and the Heads of State and/or Government of the members.

These high representatives will discuss the project of the Plan of Action, on which a high consensus level exists between the members of this scheme integrated by the Caribbean countries , which celebrates its 7th Summit in the Cuban capital.

In a new paragraph with the press, also the ambassador of Trinidad and Tobago in Cuba, Lancelot Cowie, aimed that it is a question of strengthening the communication connections and maintaining the regional beginning of cooperation and integration.

For his part, the minister adviser of Dominican Republic Pedro Ureña emphasized that the need to eliminate the obstacles of the transport inter Caribbean, then, said, the transfer between the nations of the area gets dearer and dilates today, despite the geographical closeness between these nations, which affects the trade.

These officials coincided that the meeting which will be celebrated on June 4, with the Heads of State and Government, will allow to foster a global policy to eliminate the elements stopping a deeper cooperation among the seaside member countries and the rest of the Caribbean nations.

One of the essential purposes is to consolidate the region as a Zone of Peace, and impel integration, face common challenges and reach shared goals.

---